DIRECTIONS FOR USE OF THESE GENEALOGICAL SHEETS

After a study of all the types of genealogical sheets and books I could find, without seeing one that suited my purpose, I designed these sheets to trace the descendants of a given person. I believe their fault in being cumbersome and repetitive is more than offset by their flexibility and the ease with which any branch of the family may be traced, backwards or forwards. I now have under preparation a similar form for the "inverted pyramid" genealogy starting with a given person and tracing back through his lineal ancestors.

First enter the name of the given person on the long line at the top of the left side of the page. The birth dates, death dates and places are entered above and below the name in the space provided. Below the name, provision is made for the entry of three spouses together with spaces for marriage dates, birth dates, death dates and places. Provision is also made for the numbering of each generation, the original ancestor being No. 1, his children No. 2, his grandchildren No. 3 etc. At the bottom of the left side of the sheet, miscellaneous notes may be made. Further remarks may be carried over to the reverse side of the sheet. At the top of the left column appears: "For Parents See Page ____." No entry need be made here on the first page but all subsequent sheets should carry the number of the page on which the parents appear as a cross index to the data assembled. The right side of the sheet makes provision to enter twelve children together with their births, death and marriage dates and places, name of first spouse together with birth and death dates of this spouse. In the event that a child marries and has children, this record may be carried forward to a subsequent page, the name of the child being entered at the top left side of the subsequent page and proceeding as outlined above. On the page which is being filled in enter, in the space provided opposite the birth date of each child, the number of the subsequent page on which that child's spouse and children are recorded. When there are more than twelve children a second page may be used, but in the rare instances where this occurs I have listed a child who died in infancy under notes at the left side of the page. More than three spouses may also require the use of a second page but I have not yet run into this situation. The surname of a divorced or deceased spouse is shown in parentheses.*

*While I have been taken to task for this procedure by professional genealogists, I simply prefer my method. Thus my mother's maiden name was Alice Phinney. In 1880 she married Louis Henderson by whom she had two sons. In 1890 she married Wirt Robinson (my father); since the Hendersons have no place in a genealogy of the Robinson family, it seems entirely logical to me to list my mother as Alice Phinney (Henderson) Robinson.

A good genealogy should, of course, be as fully documented as possible. The Conway Robinson papers which accompany this book provide a complete documentation of his work should any future genealogist wish to refer to them. A number of the Haxall - Cameron - Noland papers are missing but I have been able to gather much material from the descendants of these families. My extension of the genealogy up to the present time (1901) is largely based on data presented to me by contemporary relatives and by visits to family burial grounds. My correspondence files in this connection will also accompany this book providing further documentation.

I have underlined in red the names of the couples in my direct line.

It is important to re-enforce the marginal holes in these sheets with gummed linen eyelets otherwise they will quickly tear loose from the binder.

I will be glad to supply additional sheets to the Valentine Museum, should they be needed.

Many of the family have sought to link the family of "Speaker" John Robinson with our immigrant ancestor "Planter" John Robinson. The names John, Peter, Christopher and William recur in each family. While the name Beverley is also repeated many times in both families, "Speaker" John's mother was a Beverley while the name is not found in "Planter" John's descendants until the middle of the 19th Century when it was taken from a contemporary relative of the same name.

As far as I have been able to determine "Planter" John came from Lincolnshire while "Speaker" John's family came from the adjacent county of Yorkshire. There is a likelihood in my mind that a common Robinson ancestor might be found in England.

I have visited Philipse Robinson, now living near Ft. Washington, Penna. He is a descendant of "Speaker" John and has the most comprehensive and beautifully executed genealogy of his branch of the Robinson family that I have ever seen. I believe this was made for his father Beverley Robinson or for his grandfather of the same name. His name derives from a son of "President" John Robinson -- Beverley who married Susannah Philipse.

Phlipse is under the impression that the two families are related but we have not been able to determine the link.

PREFACE.

As an amateur genealogist I have learned from the several works I have studied, that none of these are free of mistakes. Having found ten errors in as many pages in the great work of Horace Hayden I quail to think of the number that will be exposed in my modest work.

I got started on a genealogy of the Robinson Family when I received a box of Robinson papers from Monroe Carpenter which I understand had been worked up by Conway Robinson with data from his father John. This work was continued later by Conway's son Conway (see Hayden p 569, second paragraph)

The further I pursued this work the more interesting and stimulating it became. I have only used a portion of the material contained in the Robinson papers. I decided, at the outset, to confine this work to the following of every Robinson male line as far as I could, cutting off the Robinson girls with a record of their marriages and children. Now and then I have strayed from this plan by becoming fascinated with Robinson girls, some of whom I know and others who have descendants that I know.

The notable achievements of many of the family are a matter of public record and, for the most part, I have avoided reference to them in this book but I have inserted some inconsequential anecdotal material to add a little warmth and color to an otherwise drab recitation of names, dates and places.

After a study of all the genealogical forms I could find, without discovering one that would suit my purpose, I designed my own sheet and believe that although it is cumbersome and repetitive, this is more than offset by the ease with which any branch of the family may be traced forwards or backwards.

I have, in many cases, been unable to secure dates and places. Many of the dates I have put down are subject to question where members of the same family have given me conflicting information. From various sources I have found the same name spelled as many as three different ways. No genealogy is ever completed and this one is no exception. Being an old man I wish to place this book in a safe repository where future genealogists may make appropriate additions and corrections.

While my work on this genealogy has been considerable over the last twelve years it has been richly rewarding in bringing me into touch with kind and interesting relatives, many of whom I would never have met or corresponded with unless I had made this start.

So long as I live, I shall welcome correspondence from any interested relative or friend.

Of the Compiler of this Genealogy

I was born at Ft. McPherson, near Atlanta, Georgia. I received my primary education at St. George's School in Middletown, R.I., winning prizes in Mathematics and Debating. From there I went to M.I.T. (then in Boston) taking the course in Civil Engineering. I was there for three years passing all of the regular courses in Mathematics but doing poorly in other subjects except surveying and mechanical drawing. I withdrew in 1917 to take part in the War effort, first with a munitions manufacturer in Baltimore, then at an infantry training school in Buffalo, N.Y. and later at an aviation training camp on Long Island. The armistice came before I saw overseas service and I was mustered out in December of 1918.

In 1919 I went to work for the T.A. Edison Industries in West Orange, N.J. and in 1920 I married Mary Duncan Gibson whom I had met the year before at White Sulphur Springs. She was the grand daughter of Senator Randall Lee Gibson of Louisiana and by her I had four daughters.

My business life over the next twelve years was a hodge-podge of false starts, - first as assistant to the Vice President of Arkell and Smiths in Canajoharie, N.Y., then as a raw cotton salesman in Providence, R.I. then as a sales engineer for the Power Specialty Co. (now Foster Wheeler) in Boston, then as purchasing agent for a firm in Baltimore, then, for a short time I was an associate editor for a technical magazine in New York and then as a manufacturer and salesman for a product which I had patented and sold to the T.A. Edison Industries. This was a high spot in my business life and one of my prized possessions is an autographed photograph of Thomas A. Edison holding my invention - a seamless metal float. The depression of the early 30's forced us out of business and in 1931 I bought a small farm in Lewisburg, West Virginia. In 1932 I left my wife but in the court action which followed I was given the full custody of my four daughters.

For a time I was manager of a garage in Philadelphia and in 1933 I obtained a job with the Sun Oil Company at their main office. My twenty five years with this splendid company was culminated by having an interesting part to play in the introduction of the multigrade gasoline pump.

In 1935 I married Phyllis Coltart Swain of Bluffton, South Carolina (formerly of Haverford, Pa.) She is the great grand daughter of Wm Moseley Swain who, with Abell and Simmons, founded The Philadelphia Public Ledger and the Baltimore Sun.

In 1940 we purchased "Bright Heath House" where we are now living. This old house was built before George Washington was born and we have grown to love it more with each passing year. In my retirement I do a little gardening and out door work on our ten acres. My indoor hobbies have been carpentry, the composition of music* and genealogy. I have been a member of the St. Anthony Club for many years and we are members of the local Whitford Country Club.

* My wife and I searched the Poquoson area in December 1950 for some trace of the Charles Parish Church and were finally directed to a pile of rubble in a field which we were told was all that remained of the church. We brought a brick home as a souvenir. A few years later Mr. Erwin Gordon, of the Reading Railroad, went over the same ground and reported to me that the rubble and crumbled grave stones had been bulldozed away to make room for a housing development. Many Robinsons were said to have been buried there from 1686 to 1782.

"There is evidence tending to establish that the immigrant John Robinson had at least another son who married but the names of this other son and his wife have not been ascertained. The will of Peter Robinson (son of Anthony and grandson of John) which was admitted to record in York County Court on Aug. 19, 1734 contains a bequest to his cousin John Robinson and to his cousin Anthony Robinson. See York County Record Book from 1732 to 1740 - p. 145"

CONWAY ROBINSON

The following is a copy of Conway Robinson's notes: "Peter Robinson, son of Anthony Robinson by Jane, his wife, b. Dec. 28, 1700. Peter Robinson, son of Anthony Robinson died July 6, 1734. The will of Peter Robinson, which was admitted to record Aug. 19, 1734 contains bequests to his brother William Robinson, to his sister Ann Parsons, to her son William, to Anthony Robinson, son of William Robinson, to Frances Robinson dau. of William Robinson, to his brother John Robinson and to his (John's) son Anthony Robinson, to his godson Starkey Robinson, to his cousin John Robinson, to his cousin Anthony, and to his brother William Parsons. Anthony's widow later married Daniel Moore and lived at the Moore House in Yorktown. There was a daughter named Martha by this second marriage and in drawing up her will the mother mentions her two children Anthony and Martha Sweney.

I have a photograph of the Moore House which I will give to the Valentine Museum if they would like to have it.

NOTES:

On Jan 17, 1777 Thomas made his will in the form of a letter to his brother when about to march northward. He left everything to his brother's son Peter Manson then under age with remainder to his brother's daughter Nancy. On Jan 25, 1742 Thomas was a professor at William and Mary College. He was censured for marrying while he was professor and dismissed. He took an appeal to England and was re-instated.

There is a family legend that at the surrender of Yorktown in the Fall of 1781, Anthony was up in a tree stealing apples not far from the proceedings.

I would give a lot to locate the piece in a Williamsburg or Richmond paper which my father showed to me in about 1915. The gist of it was that Anthony gathered regularly with some of his friends at a local tavern to discuss the affairs of the day and otherwise to amuse themselves. Anthony had a ready wit and wrote verses with great facility. On the evening in question Anthony made a wager that anyone present could tell a short story and that he would transpose the story into verse in the same length of time that it took to tell the story. He won his wager and the newspaper told the story and reprinted his verse.

On a visit to his son Wirt in the late 1830's the Reading Railroad was nearing completion and Anthony wanted to have his first ride on a railroad car. The only equipment available at the time was an engine and a flat car. Amid the protests of the family a chair was placed on the flat car and Anthony was taken on a wild ride at about 20 M.P.H., his coat and queue flapping in the wind. Legend has it that he was delighted with the experience.

In about 1820 Anthony purchased a slave for $900. The slave was a baby but he grew up to work for, in turn: Anthony, his son Wirt and his grandson William Russell. We affectionately called him "Uncle Tony". When the slaves were freed "Uncle Tony" elected to stay with "his family" where he was well cared for. My recollections of him go back for more than sixty years when he would come to my bedroom at "Colleton" early on a cold winters morning and start a fire with oak chips regaling me with many stories of the old times and now and then singing some old songs. At Christmas time after my grandfather had given him a "Dram" of whiskey he would proudly slap himself on the chest and say: "I'm a nine hundred dollar nigger!" He chopped fire wood and did odd chores at "Colleton" until he was about ninety years old.

Wirt was christened William Wirt but dropped the first name. He was chief engineer of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad and with his first cousin Moncreaf (p 24) built the road. For a time Wirt was president of the Richmond Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad.

DIED AT

Rebecca's grandfather, James May, kept an old family Bible in which were recorded the names and important dates of many members of the May and Keim families. As a young man I often heard about this Bible but I never saw it. In recent years I have tried to trace it without success. James May also had an old wooden chest which I am told was given to Rebecca's husband Wirt in 1844. Stenciled on the bottom of the chest appears, "James May, Esqr. 1749-1844." As a boy I often saw this chest at Nelson ("Colleton"). My grandfather Russell used it as a medicine chest and I particularly remember that it smelled like an old fashioned drug store. The chest is in my possession now. I have added iron handles to it and restored the partition that was in the bottom of it.. I also had two new trays made for it. It is my intention to offer this chest to the Valentine Museum.

In about 1920 I went to see an exhibition of postage stamps in a very large hall in New York City. There were literally tens of thousands of items at this exhibit and I immediately noted two items which were envelopes addressed to George deB. Keim in Pottsville, Penna. from Wirt Robinson in Richmond. The letters were mailed in July of 1861. I sought out the owner of these items and tried to buy them from him. He would not sell, saying that they were the finest examples of letters smuggled through the lines during the war between the States that he had ever seen. He did, however, give me photostats of these envelopes which I still have.

I met Elisabeth O. Robinson (p.30) when she was quite old but found her a delightful person with an extraordinarily clear and active mind. She wrote down for me from memory a letter of sympathy which Rebecca Keim Robinson had written in July 1877 on hearing of the death of Wirt Robinson's first cousin's wife - Rebecca Webb Couch Robinson (p. 19) to her daughter - Mary Couch Crenshaw (p. 29). I think the extravagant terms of this note are worth preserving: - "My dear Mrs. Crenshaw, A letter from your brother Edward informs me of your afflictive bereavement and I hasten thus to express hearty sympathy for and sincere condolence with each member of your family circle. Memory will ever cherish recalling my last visit to your dear mother and the kindly greeting that she favouringly vouchsafed. Trusting that erewhile, the benediction of a well deserved peace, begotten of faith and hope, may sublime present grief into hallowed abnigatory memoria, I am, most sincerely yours, Rebecca K. Robinson."

I have given the Valentine Museum Wirt's gold watch and propose to give them the silver pitcher which was presented to him in 1843 by his Corps of Engineers on the completion of "The Philadelphia Reading and Pottsville Railroad."

* NOTES:

The Robinson family papers which I am leaving to the Valentine Museum were given to me by Moncure C. Carpenter (p. 49) in January 1948. Moncure was the son of Alice Brown Robinson who married Charles J. Carpenter (p. 26) Her first cousin was Conway Robinson, the son of Conway (this page) and the grandson of John (p. 18). Conway R. gathered these records from his father and grandfather and did a great deal of research himself. I have added a few papers to this collection which is the backbone of this book

My uncle Cabell Robinson used to tell a story about or concerning his mother and father that it seems hard to believe. One of his mother's most treasured possessions was the jewel case which Marie Antoinette had tossed over a balustrade to a mob who were storming The Palace at Versailles. It was cracked but my grandmother proudly displayed it on the mantle at "Colleton" in Nelson Co. One spring when she was on a visit to Richmond her husband Russell was hunting for a vessel to water his day old chicks. Being a practical man without sentiment for relics he took the jewel case. The next day when my grandmother returned she missed the jewel case at once and when my grandfather went to get it, it had disappeared. I have no idea how my grandmother ~~ac~~quired this relic in the first place.

Russell was a great student of Natural History and was reputed to be one of the best shots in Virginia. He contributed articles to the "Auk" over the pen name of "Sop". He taught me how to use a shot gun when I was about ten years old.

Evelyn was christened Evelyn Carter Bradfute Cabell but some time between the age of 15 and 19 she substituted Byrd for Bradfute.

Lydia's grandfather - Thomas Biddle - bought an old house in Paoli in 1851 which had been built in about 1712. He made a great many additions to the house and when he died, his unmarried son Clement went there to live with his sister-in-law who had four children and another married couple who acted as chaperones. When Clement died in about 1879, Lydia was engaged to be married to Moncure Robinson. She and Moncure wanted to buy the house from the Biddle Estate and finally got the consent of all the relatives, who had an interest in the place, to agree. They moved into the house shortly after they were married. Their daughter, Lydia S. Moncure Robinson lives there now and from her family genealogy book has supplied me with much data on the Robinson family and, from her lively memory has told me many interesting things about them.

When the Cameron parents died in 1915, eight of the children gathered at the magnificent and extensive estate, in Gordonsville, Va. for the funeral, the reading of the will and the dividing of the personal effects which were very considerable. I have it from one of the daughters that in an atmosphere of love and mutual trust they sat around a large table and divided the property of their parents promptly and without the slightest disagreement. (Future generations please copy this wonderful example!)

Anthony Robinson and Rebecca Webb Couch (p. 19) had a daughter Mary Couch (p. 29) and when she was married in 1852 to Mr. Crenshaw her parents gave her a handsome silver service and when she died in 1903 it came into the hands of her niece, Rebecca Robinson Paxton. In 1949 I purchased this silver from Rebecca. About ten years later Rebecca's granddaughter pressed me to sell it to her, (Mrs. John G. Adams) (p. 58) and I finally reluctantly agreed. The Wirt Robinson silver service had been divided - half of it going to my Uncle Cabell Robinson's second wife and the other half going to my step mother. I had tried to purchase this silver without success which accounts for my desire to keep the Crenshaw silver although it was from another branch of the Robinson family.
